Q: How to implement jquery plugins without the cdn? I am trying to understand how to build my own jquery plugins without including the css. My question is when i do this i cannot get the width and height to work. They only work in the jsfiddle link when they have the cdn on the script tag. Here is my code. Code $(document).ready(function() { $(".firstDiv").resizable(); }); A: Resizable plugin is actually jQueryUI plugin, so you would need to include that as well. All you need to do is include jQuery and jQueryUI (src) files on your page, and point to them on your script files. EDIT: Note that because the file is being downloaded, it will be cached - so you won't need to call the file again and again. Q: Getting the mathMode-ed text While I was working on my thesis, I got some problems with the special characters in math mode. I wrote down some macros with respect to the problem. But they are too slow, because of the reusing of a char variable. It would be faster if I could get the string-value of the math mode text in a variable with more memory, because then I would only need one value in the memory and then I can use this variable for all the sections. A: This might be also a good use of \str_map_inline: \documentclass{article} \usepackage{amsmath,xspace} \DeclareRobustCommand\in_mathm\DeclareMathOperator\in_mathm ewcommand\in_mathm[1]{%\in_mathm#1\in_mathm% } ewcommand\in_mathm[2][\mathrm{#1}]
