This is the best shooter I have ever played on the HTC Vive. You are in a virtual room with your partner, and the game is procedurally generated, so every level is different. You have more than 30 levels, each with multiple play throughs (people died and had to respawn). So play this game a lot, you won't get bored. The game is kind of 2D in VR, but the graphics are very nice, and the game is designed to be VR. There is a little bit of 2D movement, and a little bit of third person VR. We took a lot of inspiration from games like Doom, and EVR. The environments are very exciting and wild. There are 4 enemy types, each with different weapons, and new ones keep coming in. We try to keep enemy count at 3, so there is no unfair advantage. Enemies attack different areas of the room, so there are no fool-proof strategies. Derby Employees Say No To Jobless Pay Today, at 10:30 a.m., approximately 50 employees will walk off the job at the Transit Systems Department at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. They are refusing to give up their jobs and lose pay without a single job guarantee. The action follows a vote for union recognition last Thursday and a series of negotiations that has been ongoing with union representatives and University management since last December. The employees are walking off the job at the same time as international action by UAW members in France. Both strike actions are part of a global mobilization against corporate profits and austerity, which are eroding the living and health conditions for the working class. UIC President Robert Jones, who is responsible for the layoffs in the Transits Department, has ordered the work stoppage and will not negotiate with the union. All of the 55 layoffs at the Transit Department were due to the closure of the notorious Race Street rail station that was operated by the UIC rail system. The layoffs were necessary to produce a functional operation that could be sold to Urbana-Champaign; however, this has not happened and has not been renegotiated with the union. Race Street has been closed since September 2017. This latest round of negotiations is, in the words of the UAW, "The Long-Delayed Negotiations." It has been ongoing since last September and follows the initial bargaining which culminated in negotiations at the end of 2015. The UAW was willing to work within the US
