I have many small images placed around a canvas like this: var canvas = document.getElementById('my-canvas'); var ctx = canvas.getContext('2d'); //... var images = { image1: $('#image1'), image2: $('#image2') ... }; Is it possible to include images in a graphics path object? var graphics = new fabric.Path(); graphics.images = images; This doesn't work. What am I missing? Thank you! A: You are missing a couple things, first is that you need to give your path object a fabric.Image instance as one of it's points. var images = { image1: new fabric.Image(...), image2: new fabric.Image(...) ...

}; Then you'll need to call `fabric.util.inArray` on the supplied points, e.g. `image1.position.x == 123 && image2.position.x == 124` If your `fabric.Path` objects do not need to have any elements (that is, if you want to use the canvas as a background image instead of real shapes), then I would do it this way: `var imagePoints = [{x: 123, y: 124}, {x: 125, y: 126} ...]; var path = new fabric.Path(imagePoints);`

Q: Is there any use of NavGuide SMART technology? I have been working on Smart homes for the past 2 years and in my day to day use I have seen many technologies. Most of the technologies are very expensive and the others which I have seen are an evolutionary move or
